BE A LIVE ONE

OWING to present conditions, and the outlook for this winter, we are all prone to allow ourselves to get melancholy and pessimistic. This has a depressing effect, not only upon all with whom we come in contact, but upon business generally.

While it must be admitted that prospects are none too rosy for the next few months, yet that is no reason why we should all give ourselves over entirely to lamentations and calamity talking.

By this, we do not mean that we should not exercise prudence in conducting our affairs, but rather that we should not allow conditions to control thought and actions to the extent of making us morose, and influencing others along the same line.

One way to counteract the influences of temporary depression is to keep up friendship in our social circles. It costs nothing to visit each other periodically and regularly and indulge in pleasant conversation or games. These gatherings will while away what might otherwise be unpleasant hours, and change the whole outlook. "A dead fish floats along with the stream. It takes a live one to swim against the current."

A WARNING TO CANADIAN LIBERALS

UNDER the above heading the Vancouver Sun, Liberal says:

Conservative landslide in Britain and now the Conservative landslide in the United States constitute a direct warning to the Liberals of Canada that if they want to avoid the political effects of the world's reaction to ward conservatism, they must go out on a national policy that will make power for Canada and the Canadian people.

Conservatism is flourishing in Britain and the United States because the United States because the Liberal parties have been talking and philosophizing, the Conservative parties have been getting things done. And unless the Canadian Liberals start to get things done in Canada, conservatism will devour them, too. At the present moment, the Liberal Government in Canada has an opportunity to go out on big progressive policies unequalled in the history of the Dominion. Three of these are outstanding and obvious:

1. An international policy consisting of reciprocity of trade or reciprocity of tariff with both the United States and the British Empire.

2. A Western policy which by adjustment of freight rates and development of transportation facilities, will let Western products find their way to world markets through their natural Pacific outlet.

3. A Western immigration policy based on the Peace River district as the major attraction for population. There is only one way to make Canada prosperous, and that is by bringing at least 2,000,000 more immigrants. Make farming possible and profitable by affording a Pacific outlet, and the country will have a big, colorful immigration appeal that will put dollars in the pockets of every Canadian citizen.

These policies are fundamental. They are progressive. They are essential.

Fiddling little things like Senate reform are mere matters of government machinery. They are necessary and warlike, but insufficient to satisfy these 2,000,000 Canadians who are interested, not in throwing out a few corrupt senators, but in finding out just how they are going to pay for the beefsteak and the lady's shoes.

Negotiations which have been carried on for several months between Canada and Australia have at length reached a successful conclusion and trade arrangements mutually advantageous have been made by the two countries, to come into effect by proclamation of both countries on a date to be mutually decided upon. The agreement is of a reciprocal nature by which Australia

It grants the Dominion of Canada preference in many lines of export in exchange for which Canada extends equally favorable treatment to various Australian products. The treaty is expected to put trade between the two countries on the freest and most open basis.

The cold weather of the past week has prompted the young folk to ask: "What about a skating rink for this winter?"

We have no doubt that if some movement were started along this line the building used in the past for this purpose could be secured again this winter. With very little trouble and expense it could be put in as good shape as ever.

The Medicine Hat News declares that chivalry is not dead in that city since out of the ten delegates which that city is entitled to send to the Calgary Liberal convention seven are ladies. It is just a question if doing the bulk of the housecleaning by the ladies can be considered chivalry.

MUST CUT GRAIN

RATES TO COAST

That Vancouver has reached the end of her "grain boom" and may even have more elevators now than she can use unless freight rates on grain are equalized is the sensational statement made by grain men and C. O. McGee R. Co. counsel for British Columbia appearing before the Canadian Board of Railway Commissioners.

It was argued that the grain trade is proving this season the inability of Vancouver to overcome, with a normal crop, the great handicap of unfair rates and to compete as she did last year, with a bumper crop, with the long established eastern route.

Chinese War Spoils Royal and Ancient Game

This Shanghai News Bulletin Shows How Additional Hazards Were Created

In the opinion of Canadian Pacific officials stationed in China, the cessation of hostilities in that country will, in all probability, be followed by a remarkable development of Canada's trade with the Orient. From letters received at the Montreal headquarters of the great transportation company, Canadians, Europeans and other foreigners did not take the Chinese war quite as seriously as did the Chinese themselves. Business was affected a little as travel to and from the interior was somewhat restricted, but at no time did the foreigners feel apprehension as to their own safety, even though, at times, the actual scene of the fighting was not known but was quite close. The main things worrying the Europeans in Shanghai were the possibility of a food shortage and the fact that the city's best golf links was in the fighting zone and had, therefore, more than the usual hazards, but traffic and travel may now be said to have returned almost to a pre-war basis.

To the Chinese, however, the war was a life and death struggle, as will be seen from the accompanying reproduction of a news bulletin published at Shanghai and forwarded from that city by one of the officers of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, to Montreal. The whole of the bulletin is taken up by war news. Pictured in the centre are Generals Chi and Su. At the top left one sees how General Kuo, finding no way in which to escape from the Chinese troops after the defeat of the Su soldiers, at Low Hoo, was forced to jump into the river, where he was finally captured. Below that, he who undertakes Chinese photography made that recruiting workmen for station work and the transportation of munitions at Jarkhat was comparatively easy as many who volunteered for this work were fearful of being forcibly recruited for service at the front if they were found to be without employment. Underneath the portraits of the commanding generals, the artist has endeavored to show Wang Deo, forcing them to retreat, and, at the right, how the Chekiang troops, by surrounding themselves round Low Hoo and by remaining quiet, tricked the Su army into thinking that the town had been evacuated, being thereby enabled to recapture General Kuo, who sought to escape it.

But the war is about over now, and on this side of the Pacific we are just left to ask, "What did it all mean?" The Canadian Pacific has in its library the "Empire of France" record of the war, and to the participants in this cruise the late Chinese war may mean a few battlefields to visit or a few more cruises to buy, but it is about all. Amid all the charm and beauty, mystery and intrigue of the Orient, a little thing like a war is soon forgotten, by the average visitor to the country at least.

Alberta Representative On Tax Problems

At the taxation conference being held in Ottawa this week between Dominion and Provincial representatives, Hon. R. G. Reid, Alberta's representative, submitted the attitude of the Alberta Government making a survey of the entire situation.

Owing to the limitation of certain policies by the Dominion, problems have been left to the province for solution which have strained the financial resources of the province and have placed upon them a burden which is not properly theirs, according to Mr. Reid's case.

Alberta contended further "that the allocation of fields of taxation under the British North America Act is largely non-effective by reason of the fact that no exclusive fields are maintained for the province," as the Dominion has the power to enter any field under the act.

In the statement submitted, it was pointed out in connection with the first point raised that there are two main areas of the province interested. The first is Southwestern Alberta, and the second is the Peace River country, in both of which districts settlers have been placed by the Dominion government and then their efforts ceased. The federal government, it was thought, should have adopted a follow-up policy and assisted these settlers of semi-arid lands in their attempts to cultivate them.

As regards the second contention, a situation of another kind had developed in the Peace River district, where the provincial government had found it essential to guarantee railway bonds in order to afford the necessary transportation facilities. This action had temporarily relieved the situation, but had cost the provincial such a sum as would add one million dollars to the current expenditure for all time to come. It was thought by the Alberta government that the province should be relieved of the conditioning and otherwise financing of the northern railways, including the E. D. & B. C. Central Canada, and the A. & G. W.

It is expected that during the season close, the work of re-ballasting the main lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the Quebec District between Montreal and Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto and Montreal and Quebec will be completed. The latter section requires only a few miles to be finished, while the other portions of line referred to have already been finished. As a result, the Canadian Pacific will have in these lines a roadbed which is not excelled by any other on this continent.

The hunt for fur is extending northward each year, according to officials of the Hudson's Bay Company and Northern Fur. They have already dispatched their steamers on their annual tour of the northern posts which each season are being located farther and farther north as the field of the hunt extends into the Arctic. The Hudson's Bay Company now has a numerous chain of posts in Baffinland and other areas north of Hudson Strait.
